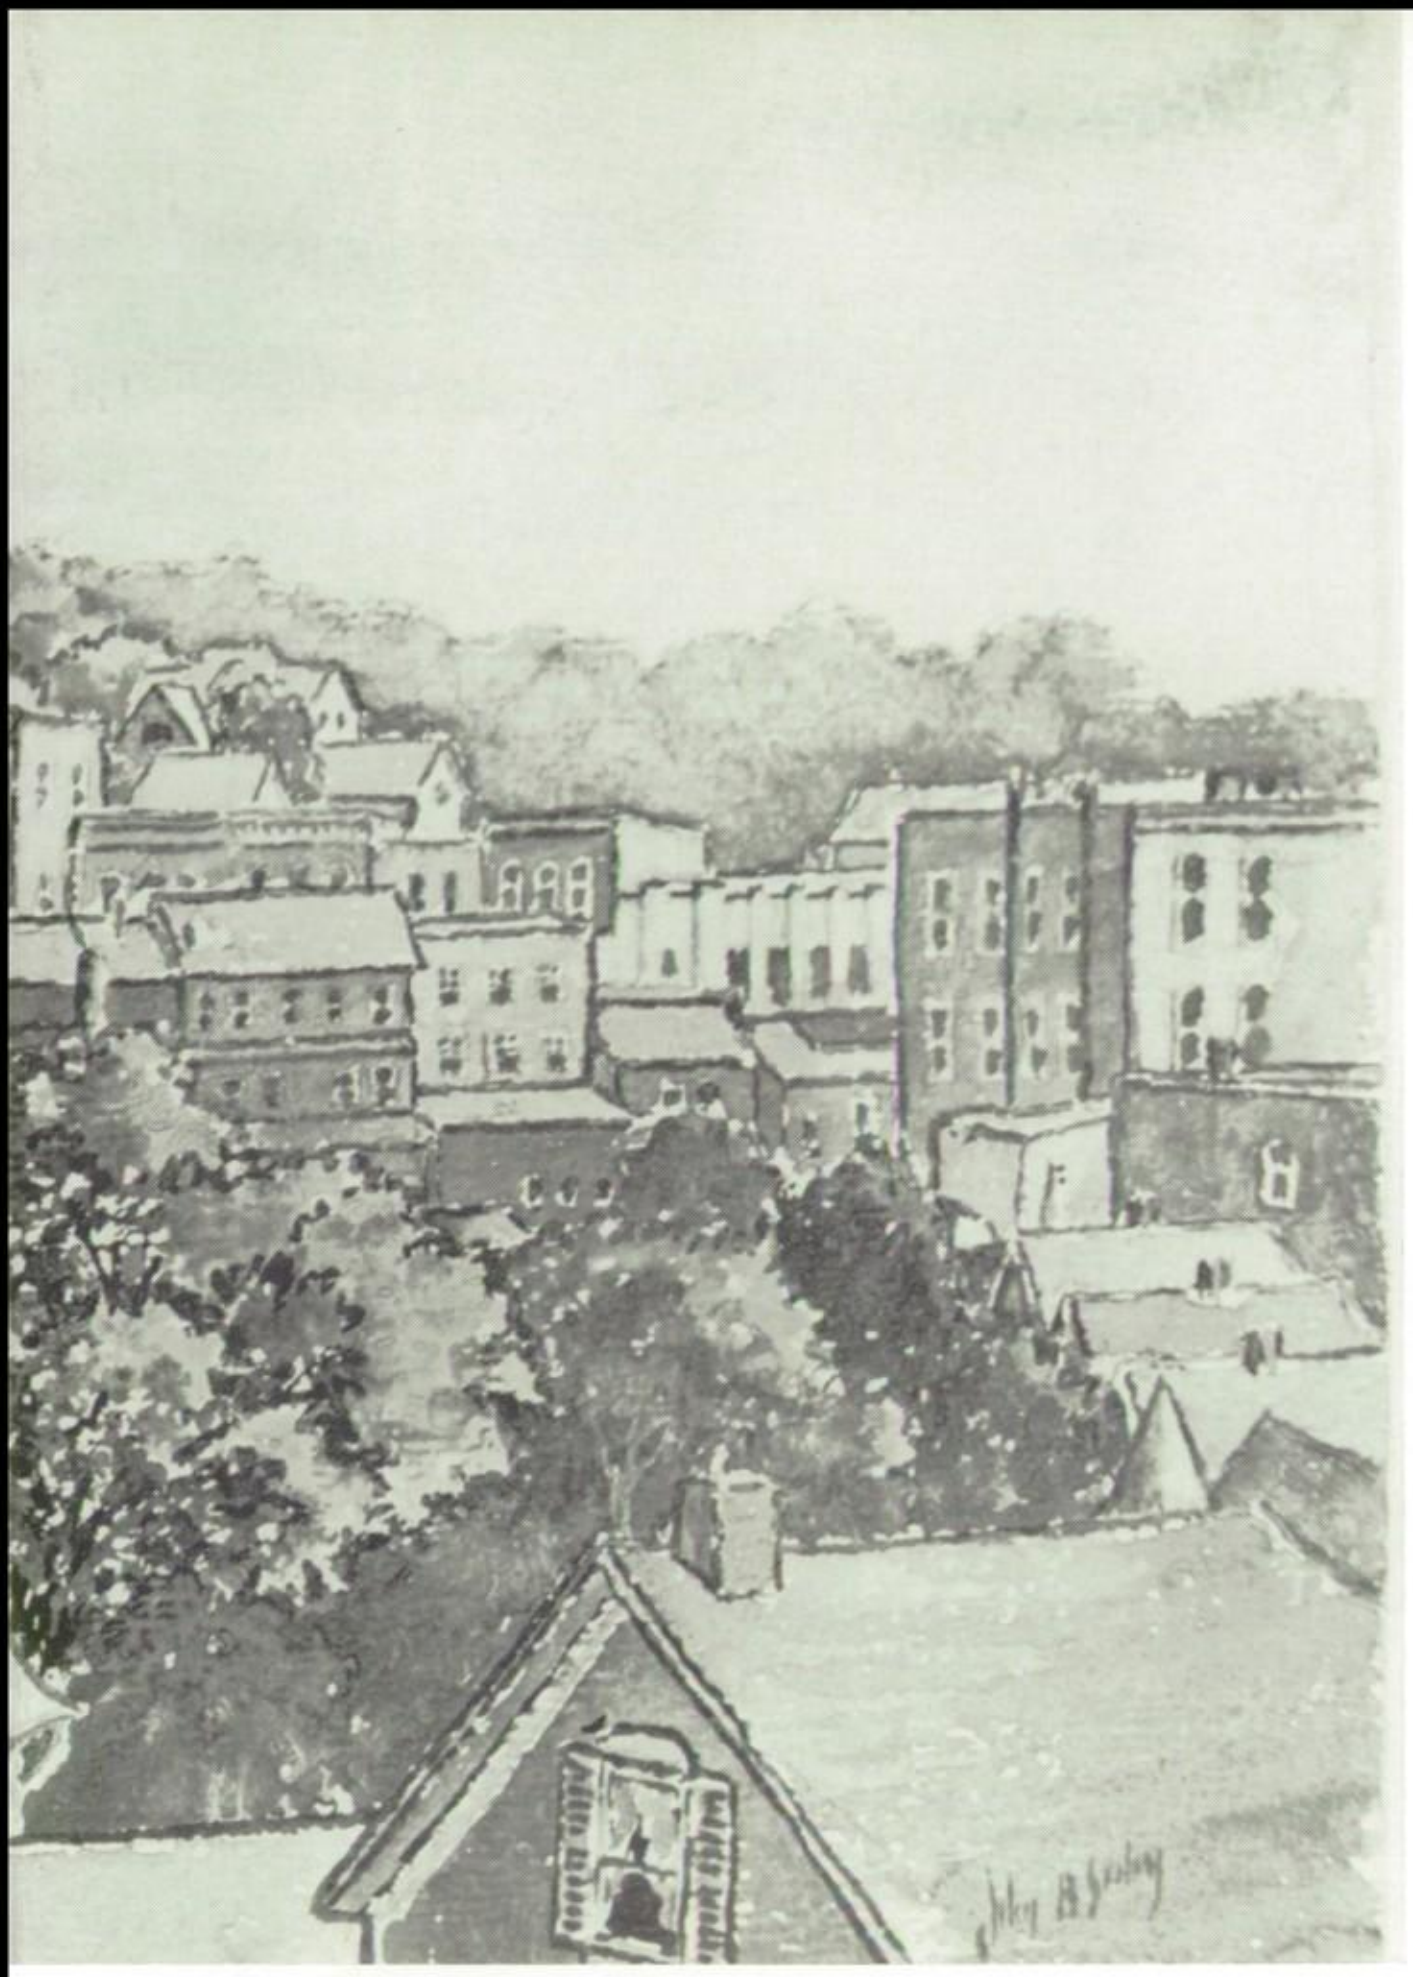
The Class of 1962 presents



THE WIZARD

In Appreciation

MISS ANNE DORNER

Dear Anne,

It gives me great pleasure to acknowledge publicly the wonderful service you have rendered the community of Ossining. Your wise counsel and help on many board and administrative problems have been important contributions to the solution of these problems and to the improvements of our schools. The 1961-62 school year marks the Fortieth Anniversary of the beginning of this service.

During these forty years, four superintendents, a great number of school board members, many hundreds of teachers and other school employees have had the opportunity to know you and to have you work with them. They have learned at first hand of your devotion to duty and of your great love for the schools of the community and for the children these schools serve.

My life has been greatly enriched by knowing you and working with you the past five years. I have been impressed, as I am sure all have been, by your willingness to do far more in any situation than the job demands.

The world has always needed and will continue to need more individuals like you, Anne, people who put service to others above self-service. Your forty years of dedicated work for the improvement of our schools should serve as a great inspiration to the young people of Ossining.

I am sure the students, the staff, the board, and the members of the community join me in extending sincere thanks and best wishes.

Charles M. Northrup

Board of Education

TO THE SENIORS:

Within my years in the Board of Education you have moved through our Junior-Senior High School to become the graduates of 1962. To achieve this has required the long and steady application of your efforts toward the goals you set yourselves. The Board, as respresentatives of the citizens of the District, has labored to furnish the tools of education—the teachers, the books, and the facilities which you needed. We have set standards of education which will enable you to move on into your separate fields of endeavor.

May you as future leaders and citizens provide even better educational opportunity to the youth of tomorrow. The Board of Education wishes each one of you a useful, full, and happy life. Best wishes!

Richard A. Packard
President

Dr. Charles Northrup
Superintendent of Schools

Mr. George Alllison, Principal

To the Students of Ossining High School:

It is with justifiable pride that I look back upon another banner year as principal of Ossining High School.

In all phases of activity our Alma Mater has forged ahead to gain an upper rung on the ladder of success. Scholastically, due to the fine work of our students and teachers, the educational standards in our school are rising as each year goes by. Sportwise, our athletes and coaches are being recognized throughout the county for their skill and excellent sportsmanship. Our clubs, both service and academic, have engaged in worthwhile pursuits to make the activity program most significant.

The morale of Ossining High School is sound. Each young person feels himself an integral part of the student body, and the pupil-faculty relationship is excellent. I believe that all of our students have great pride in their high school.

As I look back on 1961-62, I am convinced that it has truly been a wonderful year for all at Ossining High School. May we look forward to a great 1962-63!

To the Seniors:

I wish to congratulate you on the successful completion of your careers at Ossining High School. May the lessons and experiences you have learned here act as stepping stones to a happy and momentous adulthood. Take the future with quiet courage and determination and live this gift of life to its fullest!

Fall

As autumn days usher in a new year,
Exuberant students begin to appear;
And empty classrooms start to fill,
The halls re-echo with many a thrill.
The green fields pour forth Maroon and White,
As all repeat our Fight! Fight! Fight!
With the upperclassmen, whose spirit surges,
Here enter the Freshmen—a new class emerges.

Winter

As old man winter descends upon all,
The glint of Autumn beginning to pall,
The warmth-filled classrooms call all indoors
As through the halls December's chill pours.
The bare, white fields are silent and stilled—
But now the gym with cheering is filled.
With fun-packed days, laughter galore,
Here enter the Sophomores—a grand year in store!

Spring

As the earth is transformed by the coming of Spring
And Mother Nature enhances each thing,
Stuffy classrooms are baneful on warm,
soothing days
And through the halls spring fever's the craze.
The green lush fields are blooming and bright,
OHS reawakened to vigor and might.
As new upperclassmen, their hopes transcending,
Here enter the Juniors—a banner year pending.

The Ossining High tennis team . . . under the able supervision of William Crawford . . . This season marks the return of a skillful, devoted coach . . . Although losing the services of former number one, Paul Litwin . . . the arrival of a new, experienced star, James Levin . . . from James Madison High School . . . brightened the picture . . . Levin . . . Bill Fuller . . . and Herb Murphy . . . held down singles play with their hard serving and flawless net play . . . for most of the season . . . meeting Scarsdale in the most difficult matches . . . while senior Harold Kipp and young sophomore, Dave Lebwohl did well in doubles . . . But what a first doubles combination . . . Herb Murphy and James Levin! . . With Ted Becker, Lenny Ireland, and Dean Ross along with big Bruce McGowan rounding out the squad . . . no wonder OHS netmen had an outstanding and successful season.

Pounding down the cinder path . . . Sprinters driving hard . . . It's Imbriano and Stemm up ahead . . . Mike Smith, Pinn, and Bange . . . 1, 2, 3, in the 220 and also running to victory in the 880 relay . . . In the quarter-mile it's Skidelsky and Lederer . . . Milers stride with grace and power . . . Mattoni and Lengers our top long-distance men . . . Lengers . . . fifth in the National Indoor Scholastic 2-mile Run at Madison Square Garden . . . and only a Freshman! . . The pole vaulters . . . Valenzuela and DiGiacomo . . . clearing 10 feet . . . 10 feet 6 inches . . . and finally over the bar at 11 feet! . . Now the hurdles . . . Robinson and Gilchrest . . . bound over the barriers with speed, stamina, and skill . . . Bailey hurls the shot putt with a powerful thrust . . . Benke sends the discuss hurling through the air . . . Mike Smith out to break more records in the hop, step and jump . . . Tisdale, Holmberg, and Ward . . . hardrunning half milers . . . John Koepper, Tom Dilworth, Willie Smith, and Joe Lane . . . soaring over the high-jump bar at 5 feet . . . 5 feet 4 inches . . . 5 feet 8 inches . . . higher and higher .

A yell of "fore!" . . . a graceful yet powerful swing . . . crack! . . the ball arcs over the verdant fairway . . . sailing on for a 175 yard drive . . . now a hard iron shot . . . It's up on the green

Highlights of 1961-62

Summer

Warm summer days bring to conclusion
A year of fun, a year of confusion;
Through fall, spring, and winter—each in its own tone,
Now classrooms and halls stand bare and alone.
After five joyous years of being as one,
Of working and playing, now all this is done.
With a somber air, a face to the west,
Here enter the Seniors—on their laurels they rest!

Senior Class History

A momentous day in September, 1957 . . . everything new and bewildering, yet intriguing . . . memorable experiences to be collected from this time forward . . . The mark of the beginning of our class . . . the Class of 1962.

"Chippies"—a title applied to the youngest class . . .not so from this year forward, though . . . for the new Junior High Annex houses the eggshells, too! . . Time marches on . . . new and lasting friendships are formed . . . class unity begins . . . An important campaign and election . . . Kamp, presdient . . . Pazzaglini, vice-president . . . DiSisto, secretary . . . Kipp, treasurer . . . and our advisor, Mrs. Dadukian . . . that novelty dance given one day after school . . . our unforgettable "Sock Hop" . . . Our first pep rally . . . and then, the inevitable anxiety . . . as the votes were tabulated in May for our freshmen officers . . . Will he make it or not? . . . Yes . . . it's Joe Gesue, president . . . Taxter, vice-president . . . Hansen, secretary . . . and Durney, treasurer . . . Farewell, Eighth Grade!

"Freshmen" . . . shortened lunch periods . . . new subjects . . . Mr. Rockwood and Miss McCue, advisors for the rest of our high school years . . . Class meetings . . . preparing the agenda for the ensuing year . . . organizing dances . . . The presentation of "Westward Ho" . . . wagon wheels . . . square dance callers . . . Western music . . . Our idea of a barn dance! . . The end of the year . . . tension mounts . . . selections are made for Key Club . . . Leaders' Club . . . Maroon and White . . . as we finally become a part . . . a member of the senior high in name and spirit . . . With new officers Tom Crawford, Barbara Rice, Bob Bucci, and Jackie La Croix to guide us, we were ready to meet a new year.

September '59 . . . Sophomores at last . . . one year in the senior high behind us . . . The Wednesday schedule ceased to confuse us . . . a short one-half hour for lunch was all that was necessary . . . Our social life broadened . . . Bandstand became an essential part of our weekend . . . Our ring committee began working . . . considering the vital question . . . Should they be round or square? . . Key Club and Leaders' meetings . . . tryouts for varsity sports . . . Teachers waited . . . while doubtful chemists performed . . . The end of another year arrived . . . and we presented "Underwater Wonder' . . . our Moving-Up Day Dance . . . wavy sea ferns . . . denizens of the deep . . . A huge success! . . . June was here . . . and with it confusion and excitement as our new leaders were chosen . . . With Bob Imbriano leading as President . . . assisted by Larry Fink . . . Mary Martin . . . and Bob Hipple . . . the next year looked bright.

The beginning of our Junior year . . . upperclassmen now . . . September was here . . . and with it our rings . . . outward symbols of our belonging to OHS . . . Electives were chosen . . . Driver Education was a must . . . How proud we were . . . What spirit! . . . What fun! . . . The disappointment when our Christmas dance, the "Snow Ball", was ironically postponed due to snow . . . and later re-scheduled as the "Sports Ball" . . . Wow! . . What a view from 501 . . . and what a climb . . . Pass history? . . or enjoy the Hudson? . . Decisions . . . College Boards appeared . . . future plans were to be considered . . . Athletic Night . . . Never knew boys could be such cute girls! . . A tricycle race . . . a dance . . . a cheer . . . and the trophy was ours! . . After school cokes . . . dances . . . car rides home . . . chance hall meetings . . . these are part of us forever . . . May was rolling in . . . June was around the corner . . . and with it came our first prom . . . "Around the World With '62" . . . Finally after weeks of painting . . . and with balloons and marquee in place . . . we were ready . . . That night it could have been any world . . . Crisp formals and dewy flowers . . . shiny faces and plaid cumberbunds . . . the crowning of our King and Queen, Joe Gesue and Mary Martin . . . pictures . . . and parties . . . A climax to our Junior year . . . and a treasure chest of memories.

SENIOR CLASS ADVISORS
Mr. Rookwood, Miss Mc Cue.

PAST CLASS OFFICERS
First Row, Left to Right—B. Taxter, J. Gesue, B. Durney, R. Hipple, M. Martin, R. Imbriano. Second Row—R. Bucci, B. Rice, J. LaCroix, T. Crawford, W. Kipp, J. DiSisto, W. Kamp.

OUR SENIOR YEAR! . . We had waited five long years . . . years filled with expectancy and excitement . . . sorrow and joy . . . years of dances, games, and homework . . . Years of OHS . . . But it was worth it . . . we were OHS Seniors . . . Was anyone ever prouder to say it? . . Evans DiGiacomo was our Senior President . . . Leading our class with him were Joe Gesue . . . Tom Crawford . . . and Carol Overbaugh . . . Everyone was filled with enthusiasm and desire to make this a year to remember . . . The first dance of the year . . . "The Kick-Off" . . . honoring our football team in our first function as Seniors . . . Another new experience for most of us . . . our Senior Play . . . directed by Mr. Sipe and Miss Casey . . . December came . . . and with it the Senior Christmas Party . . . a holiday time for parents and seniors to become better acquainted . . . but also our last function before January . . .

'62 . . . Our year . . . Preparations were completed . . . and the biggest senior night came and passed . . . Our Senior Prom . . . leaving a bright array of memories . . . Time glided on . . . Athletic Night found us all dressed in red . . . and really "in orbit" . . . Once again our boys led the way . . . Dadada da dada! Charge ! ! . A countdown . . . a cheer . . . a song . . . and . . . What? . . . Yes! The trophy was ours again! . . . This time we felt a double surge of pride . . . Meanwhile, applications were in . . . Seniors waited . . . Where would they be next year? . . after leaving the familiar OHS halls . . . Then . . . June was here . . . and Moving-Up Day . . . but this time we were going out into "the wide, wide world" . . . Our year had come to a close . . . our life at OHS was through . . . Graduation . . . the climax . . . Yes . . . we were happy . . . but we were sad, too . . . It had been wonderful . . . our five years of shared work and fun . . . always encouraged and inspired by our wonderful advisors . . . .friendships made for a lifetime . . . and the unforgettable memories of our Alma Mater . . . and the Class of '62.

Through the Seasons

ON bending slopes, the mighty evergreens stand. They alone, of all things in nature, do not condescend to seasons' changes. Through the breathy breezes of summer, the balmy drafts of autumn, the brazen blasts of winter, the paenic gusts of spring, they do not falter in their firmness to endure. Endurance is eternal, since nothing can mar it.

Rising behind these time-tempted trees is the second home of all students. This life is ever-lasting, in that the memory it molds is ever-present in the limited minds of men. The trees and the school: either may represent and symbolize the other. The lives of both are so enmeshed that hardly can one separate them.

The trees are seeds; the school, a thought. Each is planted under favorable conditions, and life begins. Yes, life begins; but the complete effect of each will only come with the growth of each. The seeds must spring into full-sized forms, so that they may be called trees; the thought must develop into what may be termed a school.

The life-bearing sap begins to flow, forcefully pushing into the sapling. The growth of the evergreen goes on. New branches are formed, reaching up and up, nearer and nearer to its ideal. With each addition and growth, it is more a tree, just as the building is more a school with every new student entering through its portals.

The deep blue sky of summer dawn, etched by a rusty gold light from the east, is seen overhead. It is a quiet morning in the small Hudson River town of Ossining. The mist, which is seen often during this season, floats in billowy puffs toward the sky, as the sun begins stretching its light over the town.

It is Summer, 1930, and despite the lazy weather, many people in ghost-like buildings and homes of the town will soon be traveling to their places of employment. A dull roar, like that of a miniature earthquake, begins resounding through the town, as machinery of all types commences operation on a crest bordering Highland Avenue. Workmen are building a new structure, Ossining High School, which in the future will add new spirit and life to the town.

With the noises of grinding cement mixers, rumbling drills, and crashing bricks, steel beams and girders rise skyward, glittering proudly in the hot summer sun. Despite the annoyance to some of the townspeople of the constant rumbling of machinery and shouts of men during the day, when evening with its peace and solitude engulfs the town, many heads turn toward this skeletal structure and note its progress.

As the dry dust of sumer settles and the shafts of autumn begin biting the soil, the town looks with pride on the bold new structure as it sits beneath the vaulted evening sky in anticipation of greater things to come.

In front of the new school descending leaves untidy the ground around the young saplings; but the evergreens add nothing to the general confusion of the lawns.

Fall has come to Ossining, bringing with it change. Everything is touched, with the exception of the young pine saplings. Around them is only a light blanket of pine needles, denying the approach of winter and the cold. The birds that once tried to steal away the small pittance of life have flown south now and are no longer a problem. But the students rushing into the building are another thing. They do not care where or on what they step. However, nothing—not scavengers nor holocaust—will stop their determined growth or life. Up and up they spring, higher and higher, nearer and nearer to their ideal. When all other trees sleep, it is the time of the evergreens to rise above all others—secure and independent.

Autumn with all her rustic splendor has blotted out the remnants of summer; the town's foliage has been tinted and made desolate and bleak by the change. As the sun vanishes over the rim of the purple palisades across the Hudson, the cool twilight sky with its many stars slowly proceeds to blot out the daylight, leaving the whisps and streaks of yellow light as a token of the season.

The newly added link to the town stands proud and erect upon a knoll bordering Highland Avenue. The booming noise of machinery is gone, replaced by the vivacious shouts and laughter of young people, molding and shaping a new idea and spirit into the school. The crude framework has given way to a large brick structure, now inhabited by many of the town's future citizens.

As the years slowly drift into that file called the past, the growth of both school and town will increase steadily; many new buildings will be added to the town and a legacy of tradition will be developed in the school. With this idea, the season of autumn disconsolately dwindles into the snow covered depths of winter.

With breath-taking swiftness, the trees are floating in a swirling, swelling sea of snow. The winds whistle furiously about them; the unchecked cold digs into the core of all outdoors—but it cannot break into these green boughs. They lie, without a murmur—content and uncomplaining—under the blanket of needles and snow; whereas, even the wind, a loudmouthed bore, can hear the cold complaints of leafless bowers, whose frail arms shiver and shake under encrusted ice.

The time of growth is almost over. The trees stand firm in their new height. They are now mature, capable of all that is expected of them. Life keeps flowing through the snow-covered branches, as the trees sleep through Winter's chill.

With her frigid beauty and silent fury, Winter has crippled Ossining for another year. The gilded leaves of autumn have long since crumbled to a dusty mass, yet the pungent odor of shimmering ashes from the fires of fall is still heavy in the cold air. It is evening and the clear sky, with its melony moon riding gallantly across it, spans the earth. On the carpet-like snow, which gracefully covers the frozen soil, the moon's light is reflected in a varied spectrum of blues and whites, as a huge, lustrous ring encircles the pale yellow sphere in prediction of another snowfall.

The evening sky slowly fades, while the forerunning glitter of early morning light scorches the eastern horizon. The walks and streets of Ossining are embossed with patches of last week's snowfall. Ossining High School stands barren on its knoll, only interrupted here and there by sparse, rigid-loking trees.

It is the year 1946, and despite the bleakness around the town and the snow fringing the vaulted roofs, the dull cold atmosphere cannot be sensed within the school. The halls seem to shine this day more than previous years gone by; some invisible change has somehow crept into the school. Although it will not be noticed immediately, this change will gradually grow stronger, as a spark which suddenly bursts into flames. It is a modification that will slowly influence the OHS horizons in future years, lighting them with flames of warmth and spirit.

The world blossoms with color; the land vibrates with new life. Plants willingly surrender their snowy existence for the warmth of spring, the glowing melody of the soft sun. With cheerful hearts, their leaves and stems burst forth into the gentle air of puffing gusts, to flower, to begin cnew. Their lives are intermittent; they cannot live through an entire year as the evergreens do. In spring, the evergreens are the same, with the one exception—they, too, bud.

It is spring, 1962; sixteen years have crept by on that everlasting cycle called "time."

As the days grow longer and warmer, the winter snows thaw and nourish the soil. The warm mid-day sun looks bright and yellow as its rays focus on Ossining High School.

The structure of the school is still the same, with the addition of OHS offspring, the Junior High School, finished in 1958 to accommodate a larger number of Ossining students. The town has also grown larger, as the school has. Many new homes and stores have been added to Ossining.

The High School stands on its knoll, surrounded by strong trees which are now bursting into new foilage. As the sun shines through the windows of OHS, three rooms in particular grow important: the empty auditorium, empty library, and empty classroom. These rooms have mellowed with the passing years, making them more than simply ordinary rooms.

The auditorium, wrapped in silence, gives a strange feeling to those who enter. While the tiny spears of sunlight pierce its empty interior, the curved rows of brown wooden seats throw weird reflections. As the shadows lengthen across the room, each seat seems to house a tiny form. Considering these things, it is not difficult to imagine that these soft shadows seem to be humming an old and familiar tune, "The Alma Mater."

The calm friendliness of an empty room filled with books characterizes the library. The tables gleam as they bask under the flooding beams of the hanging lamps. The long bookcases lining the walls are crammed with volumes of great variety. By their worn covers, these anthologies give tangible proof of their readers.

The empty classroom has a desolate look, with its carved desks and worn blackboards. The floors have been sanded and buffed smooth by scores of shoes, both now and in the past.

While the years fade into decades, OHS has become more and more active with something which is called spirit. Spirit has no bounds as to season; it grows as an increasing number of students pass through the corridors of OHS. Although a school's exterior is composed of brick and cement, it becomes weathered with age; the interior is also made of steel and wood, but inside the school is composed of students who leave within its walls a part of them. Their voices, songs, shouts and laughter are gradually imbodied into its walls of stone and concrete.

The twilight of evening steadily effaces the bright daylight, while thousands of shadows spread over the town. For the hillside town of Ossining is in possession of a brcadening segment of spirit, which is incarnated into one solitary building—OSSINING HIGH SCHOOL.

Big trees from little pine cones grew; large schools from tiny bricks do spring. What was once only a seed is now a tree; what was once just a thought, now a school. Many years, with many passing seasons, have made this transformation.

The trees are full of magnificent strength. Alone, in a world that screamed for their destruction, the seeds caught held of penurious life and dragged themselves to the surface. From there the young plants struggled to keep their grip against things that, either for their own sustenance or for their own pleasure, wished to carry the small sprouts away. Uncomplaining and not regretting, the plants tough and tangible. The evergreens did not falter in their firmness to endure.

The school resounds with unending spirit. Unaided, the building at the summit of a hill also had to face the annoyance of townspeople, the rush of students during the day and of adults at night, and the addition of a Junior High wing; but finally it emerged as a school, sound and sublime, with something from every one of its students — something that is called spirit. This spirit can be seen in every one of the students, in every one of its rooms. The glow and warmth of it can be felt. This warmth is everlasting.

Strong and sturdy, tall and grand, stand school and tree. They live in the memory of man and are enduring, everlasting, eternal in this life. Though time can tear the tree apart and send it to the ground, though time can weary the school, forcing it to rabble, time cannot tread upon and trample down their imprint on each mans' existence; and so, the trees and school are unending.

OUR THANKS

THE Secretarial Practice Class and Miss Stern play an essential part in the financing for the annual publication of the Wizard. These girls go to local merchants, institutions, and citizens for ads to make our book not only possible, but of high quality. It is for this that we offer our sincere thanks to these girls and Miss Stern.

And finally we extend our warmest and most heart-filled thanks to Nell Greenfield, our always smiling, always agreeing, always present photographer.
